VII 次の英文を読み、あとの設問に答えなさい。

Although whales live in the water, they are not fish. They ¹breathe through their ²lungs just like us humans. They put their nose out of the water to breathe. The nose of a whale is on top of the head.

The ³tail is also different. A fish tail is ⁴vertical. (A), a whale tail is ⁵horizontal. The fish tail moves from side to side, and the whale tail moves up and down.

Whales are into two groups: “odontocetes” and “mysticetes.” “Odontocetes” have teeth in their mouth, and “mysticetes” have ⁶whale baleen instead of teeth. The nose of “odontocetes” is on top of the head and has two holes. [ア]

⁷Humpback whales are members of the (B). They are 13 to 15 meters long and weigh 25 to 30 tons. Researchers are interested in the tails of humpback whales. The ⁸patterns on the tails of each humpback whale are different. These patterns are very useful when we need to check humpback whales one by one.

Humpback whales can swim very well though their bodies are very long and large. The reason is that they have the large ⁹flippers with bumps. They are unique to humpback whales. Thanks to them, humpback whales can swim without too much effort even in the ¹⁰ocean currents. [イ]

Humpback whales sometimes hunt with others. They turn around ¹¹a school of fish with air ¹²bubbles that they send out from their nose. The fish captured in the bubbles are taken above. They then get these fish into their mouth and keep them there. They then remove the water through the whale baleen and just eat the fish left in their mouth. [ウ]

Humpback whales grow their babies in the warm seawater around Japan from winter to early spring. After two to three months, mothers and babies swim to the cooler water near Russia and Alaska because there is enough food there. They travel about 9,000 kilometers. This is also common among “mysticetes”. [エ]
